The Tragedy of Othello.

When Othello that was once soe good false in the practice of a damned Slave what shoulde bee said to thee Why any thing an honorable murtherer if you will. for nought did I in hate but all in honour
This wreck hath partly confest his villany did Did you and hee consente in Cassio's death I.4.
Deare Generall I did never give you cause I.4. doe believe it and I aske you pardon will you I pray demande that demy demy Iebile why hee hath thus ensnared my soule and body.
Demand mee nothing what you know you know from this time forward I never will speake a word what not to save Torments will ope your lipps
Well thou dost best.
Sir you shall understande what hath befalle which as I live as I think you know not heere a letter founde in the pocket of the slaine Rodorigo and here another the one of them imports the death of Cassio to bee done by Rodorigo;

the Moore of Venice

Othel O Villaine
Cassio Most horrible and mo Lod Now heere another discontent in his pocket to and this ment to have sent but that belike Iago in came in and satisfied him Othel Othe pernitious Caitiffe Cassio by a Handkercher Cass I founde it my Chamb confest it but I dropt it for a speciall to his desire.
Othel O foole foole, foole.
Cassio I am upbraided Iago that he upon the matte whereon it I and long. Seeming dead Iago Lod you must forsake this roome your power and command is rubb in Cipres: for this if I doe any torment him
